A Monongalia County business has a new home.

Downstream Strategies held a ribbon cutting Wednesday at its new location. This environmental and economic development consulting firm outgrew its place on High Street in Morgantown.

The company helps policy makers make better-informed decisions.

"There's a lot of decisions made in Charleston related to creating jobs and diversifying the economy that have to do with water issues and energy issues," said Evan Hansen, Downstream Strategies. "Some of the projects that we are proud of are the ones that we are able to do some scientific analysis and bring that to policy makers to help make better decisions."

The new office is on Greenbag Road in Morgantown.
